ONS: Measuring Human Capital

Consultations: Human Capital

The Office for National Statistics is reviewing how it measures human capital across the whole of the UK. They are asking for views on their proposals to take an indicator-based approach to measure human capital, focusing on possible measures rather than existing data. We are sure that many of you are already aware of this but would like to encourage responses from the sector to get involved and give their views. The consultation is open and will run until 11 November.

MATS: Basic Tower Climbing & Rescue Scheme

MATS: Basic Tower Climbing & Rescue Scheme

The Basic Tower Climbing & Rescue scheme is a skills-based scheme designed to support the safety of those individuals who work on masts and towers in the telecommunications and broadcast industry. Earlier this year we launched the scheme that was developed in collaboration with the industry group 'Mast and Tower Safety'. Energy & Utility Skills is now inviting applications from training providers, employers and businesses etc. wishing to be approved to deliver this scheme from January 2020.
